INDIANS DEFEAT YANKEES

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—Scott Perry was the winning pitcher in both games to-day, Philadelphia beating St. Louis, 5 to 3 and 6 to 4. In the first game he relieved Gregg after the Browns tied the score in the seventh and not only held the visitors safe but drove in two runs in the eighth by hitting a single with the bases filled. Gardner's triple in the fifth with two on bases helped to win the second game for the Athletics. Score:

BUNCHED BLOWS WIN FOR RED SOX OVER PALE HOSE

BOSTON, July 15.—Boston, with Mays holding Chicago to five hits, defeated the visitors, 5 to 1 to-day, making it two out of three for Boston for the series. Singles by Strunk, Schang, Scott and Whiteman, together with Danforth's wild throw, gave Boston three runs in the fourth. Scott and Eddie Collins played brilliantly. No Boston outfielder had a fielding chance.

WOOD'S HOMER ENABLES TRIBE TO RETAKE SECOND

NEW YORK, July 15.—Wood's home run enabled Cleveland to break the tie score in the eighth inning and defeat New York here to-day, 5 to 3. It was Wood's fourth straight hit of the game and his fourth home run on the New York grounds this season. Second baseman Wambsganss and Catcher O'Neill, of Cleveland, were ordered out of the first game in the first and second innings respectively, for disputing decisions by Umpire Owens. Score:

PITTSBURGH, July 14.—Home runs by Southworth and Bigbee were the features of to-day's Pittsburgh-Brooklyn game which went to the locals, 6 to 5. M. Baseball Takes Lead As Sammies' Pastime

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 15.—Baseball bids fair to become an international sport, according to Harry B. Stringer of the war department commission on training camp activities, who has just returned from a trip of the American camps in France and England with Raymond B. Fosdick, chairman of the commission, who has been making a survey of the recreational and relief facilities among American overseas forces.

"It really takes a trip to the front to make one realize that baseball is the national game of America," said Mr. Stringer. "I saw our boys playing from London and Paris right up to the front-line trenches. Of course, playing within the front lines is naturally restricted, because the troops are forbidden to congregate on account of the danger from Boche batteries. Nevertheless it is not an unusual sight to see groups of two or three gathering up with a baseball after a night in the dugouts and trenches. Most of the units have their own teams, and in some places leagues have been formed. Rivalry is keen and the men take as much interest in the fortunes of their respective nines as they do in the big league races at home."

FORMER PIRATE TO HEAD CAMP GRANT BALL TEAM

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 13.—Sam Brenagan, a catcher formerly with the Pittsburgh Nationals, will replace "Big Ed" Sweeney, formerly a member of the New York Americans, as captain of the Camp Grant baseball team.

Sweeney was ordered to rejoin his company with the 161st artillery brigade at Camp Robinson, Artillery Range, Sparta, Wis., and Athletic Director Omer said he would not permit athletics to interfere with Sweeney's military duties, although he regretted his loss to the baseball team. Hugh Sweeney, a younger brother of Ed's, is playing second base with the Camp Grant team.

AT THE TEE WITH CHICK EVANS

(By Paul Purman.)

The average novice once on the tee with his driver will try to "kill" the ball. After seeing an expert drive a couple of hundred yards he is apt to try to duplicate the performance. Nothing could be more costly to golfing form.

The first thing for the novice to learn is a sense of direction. This may be obtained by a proper distance, an easy swing and a perfect follow through.

Later on, when the novice learns how to hit the ball, he may begin practicing for distance, but must remember that a short perfect drive down the fairway is worth more than a long slice into the rough.

The first picture shows the stance of Chick Evans, national amateur and open champion. Evans' pose is natural in addressing the ball, which is a trifle in front of center.

The top of the swing shows that the club is brought horizontal to the body, the left leg is bent at the knee, while the right leg is stiff, forming a pivot for the swing. The left foot must never be taken from the ground.

The third picture shows the finish of the swing. The club has described a complete circle, the follow through being perfect. A novice should accustom himself to this stroke by practicing on dandelion heads or a small soft practice ball.

Notice that Evans has not once taken his eye from the ball. This is one of the great axioms of golf—"keep your eye on the ball."

SPEED STARS LINING UP FOR COMING EVENT

Event at Centlivre Park Saturday Attracts Better Known of Dirt Track Pilots.

With many of the better known dirt track stars already in line and others in prospect for the meet to be staged at Centlivre park Saturday, lovers of the speed game are anticipating the day with keen enjoyment.

"Wild Ben" Lowell, of Columbus, is the latest to send in his entry with the announcement that he will pilot his 16-valve Ford which he has at last succeeded in grooming to the point where satisfaction is his. Lowell has constructed many cars for the race track but his latest model is said to be the acme of perfection and should prove a revelation to those in attendance. The Columbus driver is the possessor of nearly all records worth mentioning and is figured strongly on carrying away a large share of the prize money.

With a lady pilot, in the person of Miss Arline Mauzy, entered in the competition and the prospects bright for a special event for local drivers being added, the speed card looms strong in its attractiveness and local fandom is expected to be well represented when the starter's gun is sounded.

Gleanings from the North Randall Meet

(By W. H. Gocher.)

The returns from the first grand circuit meeting at North Randall, Ohio, show that Thomas W. Murphy has the best average stable of his career and if none of its members meet with any backsets in the way of sickness, he is very apt to resume his place at the top of the winning drivers of 1918. During the week he started fourteen horses and won with Miss Harris M. in 2:02¼, the fastest heat of the year; Chilcoot, the Problem, which he held over since 1916; Dark Flower, Directum J., Selah Baird and the Silko gelding Dagastan. The victory of Miss Harris M also recalls the remarks made by Greely Winings when she was sold in New York last winter. At that time he said that S. A. Fletcher had decided to pass her along as he had a better racer in Peter Look. Possibly he has changed his mind since this colt bumped up against Cox with A Game of Chance last Monday when he was not only defeated but did not even finish second in the fastest heat.

Of Murphy's other starters, Kelly DeForest finished second to McMahon in the splendid race which he won with Miss Perfection while Allan Watts had to be contented with the same position in the Tavern Stake which was awarded Prince Loren in 2:06¼. Bodlight was third in the summary of his race while Chestnut Peter forced Hollywood Bob out in 2:05¾ in the second heat of the three-year-old race. This colt will also be Murphy's banner bearer in the futurities when he is called upon to meet Nella Dillon and Peter June and both of them will have to be on edge to trim him.

Three of the horses that Walter Cox trained over the snow banks at Dover, N. H., last winter came through as winners while La Princeton also served notice on all prospective free-for-alliers that he is ready for the fray by winning in 2:04¼ and repeating in 2:05¼. A Game of Chance also won a brilliant race in 2:03¼ while Peter Vonie gathered in one of the three-year old events. Cox was also in the money during the meeting with May Leaf, Betsy Hamlin, Lucky Clover, Little Baltice and Frisco Worthy and drove Bacilli and Mary's Sister in their engagements for the Fastime Stable.

Ben White, who wintered at Thomasville, Ga., paraded a wonderful pair of two-year-olds in Periscope with which he won in 2:10¾ and Brusiloff, which finished second to her with Geers in the sulky. As he has a small stable, Geers was not very much in the limelight at North Randall, but on the last day he won a clever race with "Knap" McCarthy's old standby, June Bed, in 2:07¼, and gathered in second money with the two-year-old colt, Northeast by the Northern Man. Minnie Locke was Valentine's only winner during the week, although he was in the money with Hal H., Flo Stately, Mary Rosalind Parr, The Toddler and Baxter Lou. McMahon also made his presence felt by winning with Hal Hoy, Belle Alcantara and Miss Perfection and getting place money with Peter Look, Eva Bingen and Esperanza.

The spl-odid race won by Binland in 2:05¾ was one of the outstanding features of the North Randall meeting and as he was bred in Ohio the victory was very popular. The pacing of Wilkes Brewer, made in the third heat of the Ohio stake, also gave Blanche Carter an opportunity to make good and win in time that she could almost make on a two-lap track.

The remarkable showing of the gel of Peter the Great was a feature at this grand circuit meeting, as it has been at so many in Ohio this year. Of the winners Hollywood Bob, Miss Harris M., Peter Vonie and Dark Flower are by him, while of the placed horses Peter Look, Brusiloff, Chestnut Peter, Brother Peter, Czar Peter and Peter Lafayette appear in his list of performers. The Kentucky futurity winner, Silko, also had only two starters at the meeting. They were Periscope, 2:10¾, and Dagastan, 2:17¾ and both of them were winners.

FATHER TIME FAILS TO IMPAIR ABILITY TO SCATTER THE CLAYS

(By Peter Carney.)

At hundreds of gun clubs all over the country "Old Timers' day" is proving one of the most enjoyable occasions of the season. The stories and reminiscences of live-bird shooting and glass ball shooting that these old-timers bring with them are worth going miles to listen to. It's as good as attending a reunion of G. A. R. veterans.

Who is the oldest trapshooter in the country remains a disputed question. "Uncle Joe" Heineman, of Wausau, Wis., is now in his ninety-third year, and he still participates in the tournaments of the Wausau Fish and Game club, and he can still shatter the targets without the aid of eyeglasses. Capt. "Andy" Meaders, of Nashville, Tenn., is seventy-seven years old and he broke eighty-eight targets in the last grand American handicap.

At seventy-six years—in 1917—Dr. A. J. Lamson won the trapshooting championship of Alabama. Capt. J. F. Brietenstein is seventy-five years of age and no tournament in Burlington, Iowa, would be complete without him. The captain has never missed a grand American handicap at clay targets and asserts he will attend every one as long as he can walk about. M. D. Towne is eighty-seven years of age, but still attends the Los Angeles Gun club every Saturday afternoon. He shoots a 16-gauge gun. His long run last year was thirty-seven straight and he finished the string with a score of forty-six out of fifty. S. D. Fowler, of Wolcott, N. Y., is eighty-four years old, and during the past forty years has been shooting over the traps at live birds, glass balls and clay pigeons. He shoots and reads without the aid of glasses.

A. A. Mayers, a druggist of Madison, Wis., is seventy years old and began trapshooting in 1884. That he can still set a pace too fast for most of the younger boys was demonstrated in the "Old Timers' Shoot" at the Madison Gun club the other day when he broke forty-eight targets out of fifty and carried off the gold trophy. Mr. Mayers says nothing drives away business cares and worries as quickly as trapshooting.

John T. Glover, of Milwaukee, Wis., started trapshooting in the eighties. Before blue rocks were known he and several other Chicago men devised a trap for throwing glass balls and used that for one season. In 1888 they formed the Auburn Park Gun club. Of the members of this club Mr. Glover thinks he and W. F. Morgan, now of Moline, Ill., are the only survivors. In 1890 the Auburn Park and Morgan Park Gun clubs united to form the Eureka Gun club, which several seasons ago consolidated with the present Chicago Gun club. The roster of the old Eureka Gun club included such well-known shooters as Tom Marshall, Charles Willard, F. P. Stannard, Rollo Heikes and A. J. Atwater.

F. B. Garden, of Wheeling, W. Va., recalls the time when they used to shoot glass balls filled with feathers thrown from a hand-made trap. Last fall he was quail shooting for a week and judging by the number of "hits" scored he was able to equal his record of twenty years ago. Nothing like shooting to keep a man young.

Dr. D. A. Allen, president of the West Toledo Gun club, commenced thirty-six years ago to shoot glass balls from a trap. He has in his possession some glass balls that were picked up at a match between Capt. Hogardus and Mr. Hicks at Indianapolis in June 1877. On these balls is stamped "Hogardus Glass Ball, Pat'd April 10, 1877." Dr. Allen attributes his excellent health to-day largely to his shooting habits. He has been shooting a long time, but his registered average of over 91 per cent. last year is evidence that he isn't shot out by any means.

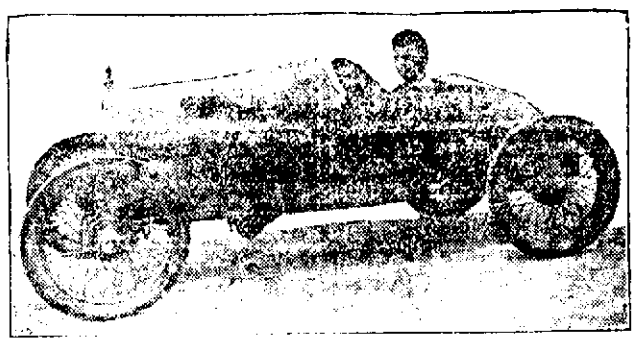
James Montgomery, of Syracuse, writes:

"I had in my coops in East Syracuse at one time 26,000 wild pigeons for trapshooting. That was in 1876 when 150 shooters from all over the country—Maine to California—gathered at the Nichols farm range to shoot at the wild pigeons—twenty-one yards' rise on single birds and eighteen yards on doubles, eighty yards' boundary. There was a grandstand lunch and everything that goes to make it pleasant for the shooters.

"In those days the man that had a breech loading gun was a dandy. The loading tables were there to accommodate the men with the old time muzzle-loaders. These were in the majority and they got there just the same. It would take a long time to tell the changes that have taken place since."

These old timers are real, dyed-in-the wool sportsmen and it is only fitting that every gun club should set aside one day a year for an "Old Timers' Shoot."

Famous Columbus Pilot and Own Creation Which He Will Drive in Saturday's Races



"Wild Ben" Lowell, of Columbus, is another of the dirt track stars who has entered the auto classic to be held at Centlivre park Saturday afternoon. The above illustration pictures him in his own creation, a sixteen-valve Ford, which will be his mount in the coming event. Lowell has constructed many racing cars but it was not until he completed the one shown herewith he was satisfied that he had done his best. The trials already undergone have convinced him that at last he has succeeded in assembling a winner and confident that with any kind of luck he'll come in for a nice slice of the prize money.

GOPHER STAR CITED FOR BRAVERY AT MARNE FRONT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 13.—Letters received by Mrs. Ora Z. Baston, indicate that her son, Lieut. Albert Baston, of the marine corps, is recovering from wounds received in the Marne region June 6. Baston, a former University of Minnesota football star, has been formally cited for bravery in action.

It was recently reported that Baston might lose a leg. In a letter to his mother, Baston said the leg had been saved and that his wound was healing satisfactorily. Baston did not mention the fact that he had been cited.

REASONS ADVANCED FOR DRAFT BOARD'S ADVERSE DECISION ON BASEBALL

BOSTON, Mass., July 15.—In deciding the test case brought by Catcher Henry, of the Boston Braves, against Provost Marshal General Crowder's "work or fight" edict yesterday, and classing baseball as a non-productive occupation, all three members of the local draft board are agreed as to the latter finding but one of them, Justice Thomas H. Connolly, recommends that Henry be not required to change his occupation, on the ground that he could not do so "without substantial financial loss to himself or others."

Henry, Justice Connolly finds, is paid $750 a month for playing baseball, and "is not qualified to take up any other occupation, which from a financial standpoint, would be comparable to the compensation he receives in his present occupation."

Justice Connolly also interprets "others" who would be financially injured by Henry's removal from the game to include not only dependent members of his family but also his employers.

The majority of the local draft board in disputing Henry's claim that baseball is necessary as affording needed recreation and in contributing to the conduct of the war by taxes, the purchase of liberty bonds and other contributions, says:

"We believe that the continuance of the business of the registrant's employers is secondary to the winning of the war, and that they must necessarily expect to make sacrifice. That the welfare of the registrant is amply provided in a manufacturing business located in Amherst, Mass., which he controls, and that he and they must necessarily expect to share in the sacrifices that are being demanded of American citizens; that the amount of recreation and relief from the stress and strain derived from baseball by those who are not going to war or who are not employed in lines of industry that will contribute to the winning of the war is greatly overestimated by registrant; and finally, that the proportion of the earnings of himself and his employers that goes into war taxes, liberty bonds and other war contributions is no material measure larger than that of many millions of citizens who already contributed generously not only with their money but with their flesh and blood."

The board states that it made careful inquiry into the measure of recreation furnished by big league baseball and found that only 10 per cent of the seating capacity of the Boston, Pittsburgh and St. Louis baseball parks was taken up at the games July 3, and that on the holiday, July 4, the seating capacity used was only 33 per cent.

The board covers the district in which Braves field, the home of the Boston Nationals, is situated, and submits its finding to Henry's home draft board in Amherst, which is to decide further upon Henry's status. It concludes its finding with the statement that it is reluctant to recommend the withdrawal of his deferred classification and order number because of lack of more intimate information of the kind of dependency in his case and of his connection with his manufacturing business.

FAILURE MEANS END OF FRENCH CHAMP'S CAREER

Dario Resta Announces He'll Retire Unless Successful in Chicago Sweepstakes.

ILL LUCK HIS SEAT MATE

Driven to desperation by his failure to win a big race so far this year, Dario Resta, formerly auto racing champion, is working day and night getting his motor ready for its final test in the International Sweepstakes on the Chicago speedway on Sunday afternoon, July 28. Resta sent his entry to Manager Charles H. Porter yesterday with the announcement that unless he was successful in the sweepstakes he would retire from the racing game for all time.

Resta is believed to have the fastest motor ever started in an automobile. He designed it himself and spent all of last year and more than $15,000 in its construction. Automotive experts all over the United States have been watching eagerly to see if the model that it would prove to be the greatest aeroplane motor ever invented.

Three times Resta has started his car in big races this season. At Sheepshead Bay a broken cam shaft put him out of the running. At Chicago in the Derby a broken accelerator spring did the same and at Cincinnati he crushed a bearing under the terrific speed at which he was traveling.

In tryouts Resta's motor has attained an unofficial speed equal to 117 miles an hour. There can be no question about its speed and power. But after the Cincinnati race, when experts from the United States army aviation field at Dayton examined the motor they were of the opinion that it was so fast that its minor parts could not stand up under the tremendous speed.

Now Resta is at work correcting these minor defects. He is so sure of victory that he has not hesitated in putting up his $2,000 as a part of the purse of $26,000 for which the drivers will compete in the Sweepstakes. It is the first time in the history of auto racing that the drivers have ever raced for their own money and where every car entered has to have a know speed of at least 105 miles an hour.

Ralph Mulford and Arthur Duray are two other stars who have already entered for the race, and Manager Porter is confident that he will also get entries from Ralph De Palma and Louis Chevrolet.

LINCOLN HIGHWAYS WIN.

The Lincoln Highway Nationals defeated the Bloomingdale Stars in a thrilling eleven-inning battle at Lawton park yesterday by the score of 5 to 2. The Stars took the lead in the first round, the Nationals tying it up in the fifth. Both scored one in the eighth, the count remaining at 2-all until the final frame when the Nationals rallied and pushed three runs across. Adamski, the winning pitcher, struck out nineteen of the opposing batsmen. Score by innings: R.H.E.

NEGRO CHAMP'S MAKER WOULD AID UNCLE SAM

Sam Fitzpatrick, Trainer and Coach, Offers Services Abroad as Secretary.

PILOTS MANY TO SUCCESS

Sam Fitzpatrick, who piloted Jack Johnson to the heavyweight championship, one of the most famous handlers of boxers now alive has applied at the Knights of Columbus headquarters in the Wahnetah building, Fourth avenue and Thirty-first street, for the place as an overseas secretary. If he qualifies he'll be sent abroad.

Sam is really about the last of the old guard. He is just a few months short of fifty years old. He was born in Australia and came here when he was twenty years old, but is a naturalized citizen.

Sam probably gained his greatest fame when he successfully piloted Jack Johnson to the heavyweight championship ten years ago. It was he who went over the top with the colored heavyweight and attained for him a chance at the title at Sydney, when it seemed as though Tommy Burns would never consent to the meeting. After knocking out Burns in fourteen rounds Johnson proved ungrateful, as two weeks afterwards he let Fitzpatrick out as his manager.

Twenty-two years ago Sam Fitzpatrick took Kid Levinge to London where he met Dick Burge for the world's light title. This championship never left the United States until Willie Ritchie went to London and dropped it to Freddie Welsh. However, the championship is back here again because of Leonard's conquest of the Briton.

Sam took Sharkey to London in 1902, where he fought Gus Ruhlin there during the coronation of King Edward. Sam also once managed Peter Jackson. He handled him in his fight with Jim Corbett in the memorable 61 round battle before the California Athletic club of San Francisco. He took Peter to London in 1890 where he defeated Jim Smith, then heavyweight champion of England.

In his day, Sam, who is now a rather rotund, gray-haired fellow, handled such men as Young Mitchell (Johnny Herbert) and a hundred other fighters whose reputations scarcely endured beyond the period that they
