HUMOR TO BE PART OF AUTO SHOW WEEK

Novelty Races Will Add Interest to Display of Various Machines.

TEST CLIMB IS ABANDONED

Cars Will Not Participate in Tug
Up Fisher Garage
Incline.

The proposed test climb, scheduled as one of the features of the Indianapolis automobile week, has been called off. It was planned to build an incline from Vermont street to the top of the Fisher garage, which is three stories high. The promoters of the week's festivities thought such a test would not result in a mutual benefit, the aim of the show being to promote a general interest in all lines of the industry

F. I. Willis, chairman of the parade committee, has completed his plans. While the "line of march" is not definitely decided, the lineup of the procession is announced. Chief of Police Metzger will be marshal of the day. He will head the pageant, followed by a corps of mounted officers.

A band will be included in Wednesday's event. After the band, in single file, will come more than 1,000 vehicles of every kind. The pleasure cars will be given preference over the trucks. Every car in the procession will be decorated.

The tire-changing contest, to be held Tuesday afternoon, promises to furnish considerable sport. The managers of the local show have endeavored to get out of the old orthodox rut of show plans fol-lowed in Chicago, St. Louis and other large cities and have decided to combine the humorous with the serious and prac-

The tire-changing event is open to all dealers and will show the speed and reliability with which drivers take the tires off and place them back on to be inflated: This contest, like all others, will be held on Capitol avenue, between Michigan and Walnut streets.

Women in Races.

One feature which promises to be popular because of the fact that women will participate is the egg-carrying contest. Women will drive their own cars between obstacles and will carry eggs in spoons. Fines will be assessed for failure to comply with all the rules. The obstacle race without the egg feature will be more complicated. These judges will be more complicated. The will decide every event: F. M. Ayres, W. Charles Mayer. The prizes have not as yet been selected.

The fact that the show week comes at the same time that the Shriners are cele-brating adds promised crowds. Special efforts are being made to gather in thousands of persons from the surrounding towns. The interurban cars will be crowded, while the owners of automobiles within a distance of several miles are expected to attend and participate in the parade and other features.

As the culmination of the entire show a buffet luncheon will be held at the Denison Hotel Saturday night. It is the hope of the committee in charge to have some prominent figures in the automobile world, such as Barney Briscoe of Tarrytown, N. Y., present to make speeches. The toastmaster has not been selected as yet. The dinner is open to all parties interested in the "smoke wagon" business. The plates will cost $1 each.

Aside from the events as named there are others with even more of a humorous tinge.

Some Humorous Events.

Among this class of events are mentioned:

The glass of water race, This consists of a driver and woman companion, both in front seats, each holding a glass of water filled to the brim. During the run they exchange seats and try to see who can keep the most water in their glass.

An event that always causes fun is the musical chair. It needs no description as the women ride in the machines until GIN

Some Humorous Events.

Among this class of events are mentioned:

The glass of water race. This consists of a driver and woman companion, both in front seats, each holding a glass of water filled to the brim. During the run they exchange seats and try to see who can keep the most water in their glass.

An event that always causes fun is the musical chair. It needs no description, as the women ride in the machines until stopped in the center of a circle of chairs. Both feet must remain on the car floor until cars are stopped. Prizes are given the women.

The blindfolded contest creates sport for the men. A post is designated as the goal and the men with secure blindfolds attempt to run their cars, face forward, near to this pole. A man must go with every driver to prevent accidents. This companion must also see to it that the driver's blindfold stays on. Any competitor running into danger and stopping scores from the point where he stopped. Small sticks or flags are placed where every car stopped. Prize to the driver.

The medley race promises to be popular. Competitors drive where a woman awaits. He ties a ribbon around her neck. She ties a sash around his waist. They drive farther. She gets out and picks a number of potatoes which she drops in pots as they pass them. In event the pot is missed the car must be run back and the error corrected. Going farther, the man must get out and pick apples from buckets while he is on his knees. Bucket not to be touched in any manner. He then gets in the car, handing an apple to the woman, who holds it in a spoon. She must hold this spoon over the edge of the car. If she drops the apple the car must be stopped and the lost apple regained. Prizes for both man and woman.
