BIG CROWD SEES AUTO RACE.

Englishman Flock to Witness Event Between High Powered Machines.

LONDON, July 4—The first motors race meeting at the New Brookland's track was held there today, the finding being by the National Automobilists Association and the British Motor Club. The races were planned on the same lines as horse racing. The vehicles were started simultaneously and the only criterion of success being priority in passing the winning post. The drivers, among whom were leading continental and British experts, wore colors like jockeys.

The stakes in the half dozen races aggregated $22,500, the richest being the Montgomery cup, valued at $9,500, besides a trophy worth $1,000. The distance was thirty miles and no official times were taken, but the cars in some cases attained a speed of ninety miles an hour.

Several of the finishes were close and exciting, and one event resulted in a dead heat. There were several breakaways, but no one was hurt. There were eleven starters in the contest for the Montgomery cup, which was won by an Englishman, J. E. Hutton, on a German car, after an exciting race, during which different competitors led at various starts.
