for Maiden Trip.

PLANS TO CIRCLE MONUMENT

Monster Air Craft Will Start on Cruise to Break Count Zeppelin's Record.

Every man, woman and child who lives in Indiana will be given an opportunity to name the largest dirigible balloon in the United States. This privilege is extended to Hoosier inhabitants by the builder of the monster air craft, Capt.
G. L. Bumbaugh of this city, because the ship is purely an Indiana product.

The airship will be launched about the middle of next week, and plans are being made to make it a notable event.
Ever since the Wright aeroplane circled the Statue of Liberty at New York recently, and the consequent world-wide interest in the feat, local aeronauts have been desirous to show that they can approach that performance.

Accordingly, Capt. Bumbaugh has decided to circle the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument in this city when he takes his big craft on its maiden journey to the clouds. He is confident of success. The dirigible balloon was built in this city, and is now housed in the aerodrome at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where it awaits favorable weather conditions to

ANSWERED OF LAND CLAIM

Best Hope at Drawing, but Finds Herself Winner of Fine Tract.

S. D., Oct. 29.—Turning sad and broken-hearted from the drawing of names of the Cheyenne River and reservations, Mrs. Silvia Mandusky, O., a widow, 60 years old, stood idly at the printed list on the wall and, hope gone, with most bitter disappointment decided to take one more long and day after day hours at the drawing in the hope that she would hear her name on the pages she was holding. Her own name opposite the name of the winner of that choice she screamed; "my name is answered." Hearing down her face she knew the platform to know if true. She had worked hard to pay her way to Aberdeen days to hear her name, and as called she had dozed of the 20,000 names ended at Clark City, Ia., being back of tabulating the names there for a month.

dirigible balloon was built in this city, and is now housed in the aerodrome at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where it awaits favorable weather conditions to be inflated and launched. It represents the dreams of a lifetime and typifies the progress of man's achievements.

The question of giving an appropriate name to this ship, which is next in size to the one owned and operated by Count Zeppelin of Germany, has been perplexing. A solution to the problem was reached yesterday when Mr. Bumbaugh asked The Star to aid in the christening.

His invitation to every inhabitant of the state is that they send names, suggestions for appropriate titles, to the Balloon Editor of The Indianapolis Morning Star by mail, not later than next Tuesday night, Nov. 2. Three judges will be appointed to pass upon every name. The names of members of this committee will be made public in a day or two.

Give Name on Day of Flight.

The name that is selected will be kept a secret until it has been painted on two strips of white canvas, seventy-five feet long, and hung to either side of the big dirigible. The Star will announce the date for the initial trip, which will be made at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The balloon will be driven from its mammoth shed at the Speedway to the heart of the city and as it circles the high monument the name will for the first time be made public.

Many persons have already offered names to the builder, but he has declined to have any part in the selection, telling them they must submit, by mail, their titles and run their chances of having the distinctive honor of naming the greatest flying machine in America.

The picture of the person whose suggestion is accepted will be published in The Star with a picture of the balloon in its flight around the monument. After making two or three trips around the monument it is the intention of the Hoosier aeronaut to strike out across the country in an attempt to make a world-record-breaking flight. Count Zeppelin has sailed for about thirty hours without landing. Mr. Bumbaugh believes he can put this record to shame and make a flight of at least forty-eight hours. The bag holds 100,000 cubic feet of gas.

Requires Two Operators.

With coal gas it will lift 4,000 pounds and with hydrogen gas it will lift 7,000 pounds. Two men are required to man it, and three can best guide the big flyer. The engine and the many other delicate parts of the vessel are the result of years of study and hard toll. Carl Fisher has aided materially in making
