SIR HUON WINS HANDICAP

FAVORITE FALLS IN STRETCH

Long's Horse, at 15 to 1, Captures $10,000 Commonwealth Stakes—Dandelion, the Choice, Miller Up, Does Not Finish.

NEW YORK, July 7.—George J. Long's Sir Huon, at 15 to 1, won the $10,000 Commonwealth Handicap, mile and a quarter, at Sheephead Bay today, defeating a fair field of handicap horses. Glorifier was second, with Cederstrom third. Dandelion, the favorite, with Miller in the saddle, fell as the field swung into the home stretch. Miller got up unscratched. As he appeared at the judges' stand he was given a rousing cheer.

The protest of T. R. Hitchcock against Go Between starting in the Commonwealth Handicap was sustained by the Jockey Club, and accordingly, the Shields horse was scratched. The start in the Commonwealth Handicap was good, and Lynne sent Cairngorm into the lead, followed by Cederstrom and Dandelion. As the field swung into the stretch they were well bunched. Miller tried to come through on the rail, and in doing so Dandelion jumped on Cairngorm's hind legs, which caused the former to cross his feet and fall. Glorifier then shot out of the bunch with a lead, but it was short lived, as Sir Huon was coming fast, and, catching Glorifier in the last sixteenth, won by one length. Summaries:

First race, 6 furlongs—Handzarra, 113 (Martin), 13 to 5; Nannie Hodge, Edna Jackson, time, 1:13 2-5. Second, steeple-

Indiana's Schedule.

The University of Indiana is preparing an excellent football schedule for next fall in spite of the drastic regulations of the Chicago Beach Hotel conference. It has been practically settled that the Bloomington eleven will meet both the University of Illinois and Wabash College at Indianapolis next fall and both of these games should be good ones.

In addition, Sheldon's eleven will meet the University of Chicago and possibly the University of Wisconsin, giving it probably as representative a schedule as that of any of the "big nine" schools, although not as ambitious as some of them. The growing importance of Wabash in Indiana athletics and the prospects of a good team next year will make that game of exceptional interest in Indianapolis, which is unquestionably the proper place for it to be held.

The affairs at Purdue, unfortunately, are in an unsettled state. A great many of the best members of the football team will not be back next year and it is not known what kind of an eleven will represent the school. New methods of athletic instruction remain to be tested and in the meantime the supporters of the institution can only hope for the best.

One move has been made at Lafayette that is in line with recent agitation, and that is the cutting of the price of admission to students to the athletic games. This cut applies, at least, to the students who are members of the athletic association and will make a big difference in the receipts of the athletic association. It is aimed, however, to make the association self supporting and admission to the games is held up as a motive for bringing practically all of the student body into the athletic movement.

treated fairly by the conference body and there is a lot of talk about seceding. This, of course, is mostly talk, and many friends of the institution would rather it should not be made.

The dissatisfaction at Michigan started over the requirement that all football coaching should be done by a member of the faculty. This was taken as a slap at Yost, who is almost idolized by the followers of the institution and the resentment was so great that the rule had to be changed to allow Yost to remain, but to prevent the employment of another professional coach to succeed him.

Then followed the rule barring men who had participated in track events for three seasons from future participation and this was taken as another blow at Michigan. It deprived Michigan of the services of such stars as Johnny Garrels and a majority of his teammates of the past season, while it did not affect the University of Chicago and the Indiana schools much because the majority of their track men were lower classmen.

TO TEST LOITERING LAW.

Toledo's Former Prosecutor Says No Authority for It Exists in State Statute.

TOLEDO, O., July 7.—The ordinance under which a charge of loitering is made against many undesirable persons by the police is to be tested in Common Pleas Court by ex-Prosecutor Charles W. Meek, who alleges that no authority for the ordinance is given in the State law.

There is a loitering ordinance in nearly every city in the State, and although frequently claimed to be unconstitutional a test case has never been taken to the higher courts. Attorney Meek believes that he can beat the ordinance.

It is under that ordinance that prosecutions of women of the streets are made
