The creek has long been known as an excellent place for bass, but on the other hand some of the prettiest catches of goggle eyes, perch, rock bass, sun fish and catfish caught in any of Indiana's streams have been reported. The recent heavy rains have practically spoiled all of the fly fishing in this vicinity, nearly all of the streams being high and muddy.

Catfish Biting.

Catfish Biting.

As a result of the heavy rains, however, the catfish seem to be biting better. Quite a number of this variety were caught north of the city in this county; some of which weighed about four or five pounds. The largest small mouthed bass caught in Fail Creek this season which has been reported was landed by Tom Hendrickson just below the dam near Hammond's Park, north of the State Fair Grounds. The fish weighed four pounds and twelve ounces.

Probably the best fishing to be found in Fail Creek in this county is at this point of the stream. About five miles north of the dam several good holes may also be found. The sportsmen in Madisson be found. The sportsmen in Madisson County find that the best catches are made between Ingalis and Pendleton. Between these two towns the creek is found to be especially swift in places. It is on account of the falls near Pendleton that the stream takes the name of Fall Creek.

Big Catch Reported.

The largest small-mouthed bass to be caught in this vicinity and taken to Gus Habich's store to be weighed, where a prize is given each year to the individual making the biggest catch of this special variety, was landed by "Dutch" Rush-kauph. The member of the finny family pulled the balance up to five pounds and ten ounces. It was caught in White River near Noblesville. near Noblesville.

near Noblesville.

Owing to the fact that the large-mouthed bass, weighing much heavier than other variety, are found to a great extent in the lakes the Habich Company decided to give the anglers who have not the opportunity to go away from home the chance for the prize by limiting the contest to the small-mouthed kind. 'As a matter of fact this fish is the gamest one found in the streams of the middle West, and may be easily considered as second to none so far as a palatable dish is concerned.

HIGH WATER HURTS SPORT.

Rock River Fish Being Protected and Anglers Will Soon Be Busy.

streams muddy and murky-most of the time, the downpours coming at such intervals as to make bass fishing an impossibility. But the disadvantage to the fishermen was decidedly to the advantage of the finny tribe, for they were protected during the spawning season, and it should make Rock River full of the small fry. Fall fishing should be especially good, for it is well known that usually hundreds of fish are taken from the streams during June and July, and these will now be left for the sport later on.

Very few infractions of the game laws have been reported since the organization of the Rock River Fishing Club last spring, which is now composed of over 100 persons who pledged themselves to assist in the prosecution of any one disregarding the laws. Two arrests were made for shooting squirrels during the closed season, fines and costs of $35 in each case being assessed. This had the effect of stopping a good deal of this disregard of the law and gave all a chance when the season opened, which is reported to be the best for the bushy tailed rodents in years.

Moore of Indianapolis, on the second day of the tour, it was decided to withdraw the four black marks against the machine. Owens's Reo, received on July 11, was also scratched out. The Reo had crossed the checking line at South Bend through an unavoidable mistake before the control flag was hoisted.

A message was received at the C. A. She will recover. A similar examination of K. R. Otis showed a number of splintered bits of glass in the left knee.

Mr. Otis will be confined to the hospital at Toledo for several months, it is said. Mrs. Thomas Clark, wife of the Chicago man who was injured near Bryan, O., arrived at the bedside of her husband yesterday, all hope of Mr. Clark's recovery having been abandoned.
