SPEEDWAY MANAGERS READY FOR SPEED TESTS

ONLY FAIR WEATHER NEEDED
TO BREAK RECORDS.

RACE DRIVERS HOLD PRACTICE

All preparations are being completed for the record trials and speedway officials make the statement that they certainly will be held unless the weather conditions should make them absolutely impossible. Nothing short of a storm will act as a preventive, according to E. A. Moross, director of contests. It will not be essential for the track to be thoroughly dry for the speed trials, and it is said that gasoline will be burned on the turns if it is necessary to dry the course in that manner.

Sewell Mottlinger, in the little Empire racing car, yesterday, demonstrated that there is little danger from a wet track while the machines are running at high speed. He had been repeatedly driving miles around fifty-seven seconds without apparent risk, when he decided to stop on one of the high banked turns to examine his engine. The car, which had been taking the high turns at extreme speed without even skidding, slid to the bottom of the track from its own weight when stopped.

Several drivers are scheduled for practice this afternoon, including Aitken, in the National; Harrison and Stillman, in

The car, which had been taking the high turns at extreme speed without even skidding, slid to the bottom of the track from its own weight when stopped.

Several drivers are scheduled for practice this afternoon, including Aitken, in the National; Harroun and Stillman, in Marmons, and Motsinger, in the Empire. Christie was uncertain whether or not he would have his torpedo racer out today. All of the drivers are loud in their praise of the newly bricked track, and they state that it will only be necessary to have fair conditions to break all previous American records. It is hardly thought, however, that the marks will be placed as low as they will be dropped next year, when the conditions will be better than can be hoped for this week.

Arrangements are now being made for car service for the crowds that will witness the speed trials.
