AUTO WORLD'S EYE ON INDIANA COURSE

Triumphant Pilots at Atlanta Come to Indianapolis Speedway for Workouts.

MOROSS TELLS OF MEETING

Speedway Director Reviews the Southern Races and Brings Word From Drivers.

Many Indianapolis enthusiasts who attended the automobile races at the Atlanta Speedway last week returned yesterday and last night, while the drivers and mechanics who participated in the events will be home today and tomorrow. All will start preparations for the automobile races at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 27, 28 and 30, and the big bricked course will be a busy scene from now until the meeting. Dashing cars and humming motors will be daily accompaniments to construction work at the Speedway.

In the returning caravan was E. A. Moross, director of contests at the Indianapolis Speedway. Mr. Moross said:

"The eyes of the motor world are on Indianapolis racing cars. The way that Indianapolis cars and drivers cleaned up with things at Atlanta was certainly a shame. We expected and predicted that the Indiana racing machines would win half of the events, but no one would have dreamed they would win nine out of ten regularly programmed races.

"The Marmon, National, American and Cole swept the boards. Harroun won the greatest number of places, while Bill regularly programmed races.

"The Marmon, National, American and Cole swept the boards. Harroun won the greatest number of places, while Bill Endicott in a Cole 'thirty' won every event in which he started. Aitken, after a mishap which might have proved fatal to a less skillful pilot, made a sensational cleanup in the last race, and Hard Luck Herb Lytle drove like a demon. There was plenty of competition of high-priced and high-powered cars. De Palma was there was a Fiat 'ninety,' the same type of machine with which Bragg, the darling amateur, trimmed Oldfield. He also had a 'sixty' stock car. Strang also had a foreign machine, as he drove an S. P. O., also an Alan-Kingston, but before the Indiana onslaught they were powerless to make a showing. One thing has been evidenced and that is that Indianapolis racing cars can be depended upon to win their share of the prizes wherever they compete, while Harroun, Aitken and Lytle are making names that are wiping the heroes of old off the map.

Harroun Proved Ability.

"Harroun was a star, winning three firsts and placing in a couple of other events. When he was not winning the National and American were at the lead of the contests, and the way the Nationals flew around the track was a caution. Hard luck pursued Aitken, star of the Blue racing team. When leading in the first long event of the meet he ran off the track. Few people realize what running off the track at the Atlanta Speedway really means. Unless this is done on the home stretch, it is a drop of about thirty feet, and that is what Aitken took. How he ever escaped with his life is a mystery and another one of the lucky incidents of the Atlanta track.

"Johnny was broken-hearted when his car was out of the entire meet after the first day, and as he viewed the wreck the tears coursed down his cheeks, as he seemed to have it cinched. Harroun, the desert Bedouin, was trailing him; after that no one had a chance to overtake the Marmon. In fact, Indianapolis cars were making the race anyhow, and Harroun went through the entire 200 miles without even hesitating. It was a wonderful performance.

"Herb Lytle was a space destroyer, daring and reckless. Lytle has not won an event for a long time until Atlanta, and the way he took chances made Oldfield in his palmiest days look like a safe and sane driver. His driving brought out the American car as another of the Indianapolis products with high-powered stock class.

"Hard luck pursued Lytle almost to the end of the meet. He would obtain a good lead and off would come a tire or two. He drove the heaviest car at the meet. In the fifty-mile race, which he won, his driving was the most sensational I have ever seen on a track. He had a lead on

"Hard luck pursued Lytle almost to the end of the meet. He would obtain a good lead and off would come a tire or two. He drove the heaviest car at the meet. In the fifty-mile race, which he won, his driving was the most sensational I have ever seen on a track. He had a lead on the National when he lost a tire. A car was replacing a tire at the pits and Lytle could not see his pit on account of the smoke.

Car's Bulld Stops Turnover.

"When he saw that he was going to pass it he slammed on his brakes and his car turned sidewise. Had it been other than an underslung American I doubt if he would have escaped without turning turtle. He changed his tire and took after the fast-flying National that was leading. Kincaid was saving his tires, which were bad, and Lytle ripped him less than a mile from home, winning by about twenty-five feet. At the finish all of Lytle's tires were in bad shape, the tread being completely off of two of them. He took reckless chances to win that race.

"Bill Endicott, in a Cole 'thirty,' won every event in his class. He won as he pleased and played with his field in all events. On account of numerous of the classes on the entry blanks not filling impromptu events were substituted, so that according to the events that were programmed there were but ten of the official races held; of this number Indianapolis cars scored nine firsts and many seconds, also thirds. In most cases it was in one, two, three order.

"Strang, De Palma and Christie could only look on and watch the 'Hoosier holiday,' and with this confidence it is to be easily seen that Indianapolis cars will also do things at home.

Indiana Drivers Talk.

"I am simply practicing for Indianapolis," said Ray Harroun after the last event at Atlanta.

"This is merely a workout for me," said Johnny Aitken. "I have my eye on those championships. I am not going to predict more than to say some one will have to drive faster than they did at Atlanta to get me."

"For the first time in years I am back in my old stride," said Lytle. "I have confidence in my car. It will deliver the goods. I will drive as long as there is a wheel left to run on. I am out to win and will not be out of a race until the last car has crossed the tape."

"This is a new game for me," said Bill Kincaid. "I am the last to enter the racing ranks of the Indiana drivers. Three straight is not so bad. I hope to do as well as Indianapolis."
