Testifies at Speedway Disaster Inquiry.

W. H. Blackwell continued the hearing at Indianapolis in the motor speedway today before Harvey Stout, Jr., in command of a squad of soldiers on guard at the track at the time of the wrecking of the National car driven by Charles Mays and which killed three persons, was the principal witness.

Blackwell said that every effort was made to keep spectators away from the fence and that signs were posted up in dangerous places to warn spectators of danger of standing near the fence. An important detail in Stout's testimony was that he walked across the track at a point where the car went wrong and declared it was so rough that it was hazardous even to pedestrian.

J. D. Althea and Thomas A. Kinney, both employed as drivers of racing automobiles, testified that the track was rough at the time of the accident to the National car.

W. H. Hert, a spectator, told the hearing that spectators were warned away from the fence.

Harvey Stout, Jr., Testifies at Speedway Disaster Inquiry.

Coroner Blackwell continued the hearing of evidence in the motor speedway case today. Harvey Stout, Jr., in command of a squad of soldiers on guard at the track at the time of the wrecking of the National car driven by Charles Mora and which killed three persons, was the principal witness.

Stout testified that every effort was made to keep spectators away from the fence and that when there seemed to be no one present he would call out to the spectators to keep away from the track, and that he walked around the track at a point where the cars were driving and declared it was an extremely hazardous area to go into.

J. D. Atkins and George A. Brown both employed as drivers of racing mobiles, testified that the track was rough at the time of the wrecking of the National car.

W. H. Hart, a spectator, said that he was warned away from the race-
