mass formation of Europe's attack, while the infection of Dave Lewis into the fray completes a similar combination for the Duesenberg team, also defenders of the Stars and Stripes against foreign aggression. Then there are five Peugeots in the field, two of these, however, will be tooled by the second team of the tooled by Frenchmen, Goux and Bou-lot, against three sons of Uncle Sam, Eieut. Arthur Klein, Ray Howard, and a driver yet unnamed. Another team of five cars is the Hudson, headed by Ira Vail and Eddie Pullen, seconded by H. C. Simmons, J. M. Reynolds and Denny Hickey.

The balance of the field is arrayed in pairs' and individuals, with such names as DePalma, Resta, Chassagne, Copper and Hearne as guarantee of Cooper and Hearne as guarantee of brilliant and spectacular performance.

Nor will it do to overlook the pair of Fremier, cars thrown into the breach by the Indianapolis Speedway when it became apparent that Europe would be present with a top heavy field. The Premiers were just beginning to hit their stride when the speedway abandoned racing in 1916, displaying their true form in the displaying their true form in the closing 100-mile race-on the New York speedway, when Frank Galvin, at the wheel of one of the Indianapolis-made speed creations, was nosed out for first only by Johnny Aitken by a fraction of a second, and covered the century at the dizzy rate of 105.71 miles an hour. In the hands of competent and daring drivers, such as the Indianapolis speedway will be certain to select for this race the Premiers are dangerous to the aspirations of any rivals, and are apt without warning to step out and finish far in the forefront of the contest.

Altogether it looks as though the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, on May 31, would witness one of the beautiful analysis and buttles ever most remarkable speed battles ever staged.
