STRANGER PLACED IN JAIL FOR SAFE KEEPING

A man giving his name as Irwin and his home as South Bend is in the Cass County jail for safe keeping. According to his story, he was struck by an automobile and rendered unconscious. He got better but the abhorration returned and he started wandering. He reached Frankfort where the authorities attracted by his queer actions picked him up and placed aboard a Vandalia train. The train officials were told that arrangements were all made for him here. This proved unfounded and there was some discussion as to what disposition was to be made with the man. He will probably be sent to the hospital today. He was attended by a physician last night.

SHRAPNEL SHELLS.

Various Types in Use and the Mass of Bullets They Carry.

Most nations are agreed that the three inch shrapnel is the most effective for killing men in modern warfare. The three inch type, which is almost universally used, contains from 210 to 800 half inch lead bullets, bunched together in the front part of the shell. A time fuse, which is made with the accuracy of a watch, is graduated in seconds and is set to explode at a given range as determined by the artillerymen.

The velocity of the shell may be gathered from the fact that it travels a mile in four seconds and within a quarter of a minute is four miles from the mouth of the gun. At any time during this rapid flight the shell can be made to explode with marvelous precision and deadly effectiveness, driving its bullets in a cone shaped shower down on the heads of the enemy.

A remarkable fact regarding these shells is that the velocity of the bullets when the shell explodes exceeds the velocity of the shell at the time of the explosion by from 250 to 300 feet per second, the bullets of a bursting shell covering a zone about thirty yards wide and 200 yards long.

Shrapnel shells used by different governments at the present time all operate on the same principle, but differ somewhat as to size and the arrangements of the fuse.—Pearson's Weekly.

NAVAL SIGNALING.

It Began in Ancient Days by Raising and Lowering Sails.

The origin of the idea of using flags by day and lanterns by night for signaling in the navy came into being as far back as the middle ages.

In those ancient days some one thought out a method of raising and lowering sails, the number of times they were raised or lowered indicating the letter that was to be sent. That proved very wearisome work and was superseded in the seventeenth century by the use of balls, and cones hoisted in various positions on the masts and booms. At night different colored lanterns were used.

In the following century twelve flags were used, either singly or in combination, and these flags supplied all the signaling that was necessary in fighting, as "Make all sail," "Engage the enemy," "Chase the enemy" or "Anchor."

When the battle of Trafalgar was fought the signals were sent by light, guns and flares and flags, and it was not till after that battle that the system, invented by Sir Home Popham, was used and on which are based the present day methods of signaling.

The system of signaling from ship to ship by semaphore was due to a Frenchman named Chappe in 1794 and adopted in the British navy a few years later.—London Telegraph.

Asks Court to Grant Right to Sell in Toto

PETITION FOLLOWED RECENT MEETING OF CREDITORS AND STOCKHOLDERS OF THE RUMLEY CO.

(By Associated Press.) Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 2.—Petitions for the sale of the M. Rumley company and the Rumley Products company as going concerns were filed in the federal court here today by Finley P. Mount, receiver of both concerns. The Rumley companies have been under a receivership since January 19 as a result of suits brought by the Oliver Chilled Plow works and the Maytag company. The petition states that to sell the companies by parcel would work to the disadvantage of the companies' interests and the interests of their creditors. The Rumley interests, with headquarters in Laporte, Ind., manufactured agricultural machinery.

Stonehenge.

No sooner had we set foot on the first swell of plain than I became aware of what looked like a herd of elephants, half a mile ahead. They did not move, and slowly, it dawned upon me that this was Stonehenge. A few minutes later, seated within the circles of those enormous stones, I was asking myself the old questions that so many travelers have asked. For worship, at least, these rude masses were erected; that seems fairly certain. And to commemorate a battle, if one may judge from the barrows that crown the neighboring hillocks. Religion and war—the two powers that have charmed and ruled and tortured the world. So mysterious is the whole of life, alike moral and physical, that the haunting wonder of Stonehenge was neither increased nor lessened by what then I saw.—Scribner's.

Council Scheduled to Pass Jitney Ordinance

OPERATORS OF JITNEYS ASSERT THEY WILL ABANDON BUSINESS IF ORDINANCE IS PASSED.

The city council, which convenes in regular session tomorrow night will probably pass a jitney ordinance. Mayor Guthrie stated yesterday that the matter would be discussed and a vote taken.

It is reported that the jitney operators have declared they will go out of business if the proposed ordinance is passed.

Lawson Says Rockefeller Plan Is Impractical

INDUSTRIAL INNOVATION SUGGESTED EMBODIES MEDIATION BETWEEN LABOR AND CAPITAL

(By Associated Press.) Pueblo, Colo., Oct. 2.—The fate of the Rockefeller industrial plan now hangs upon the action of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company directors and company's miners. At a meeting here today attended by delegates from the various Colorado coal camps, operating officers and mine superintendents, the plan was approved unanimously.

The meeting voted to submit the proposal to the directors at a meeting in Denver on Monday, and to the miners at a referendum vote. The miners will vote at each camp by secret ballot if a majority of the directors and a majority of the miners elect to accept the plan it will become effective at once.

The industrial system which was devised by Mr. Rockefeller and W. L. Mackenzie King, with the assistance of Colorado Fuel officers, as a solution of the industrial problem in Colorado, embodies direct mediation between capital and labor. Mr. Rockefeller himself declared it "more democratic than unionism" because it included all employees, whether organized or not. However, it provides for an organization of its own, in which the miners elect representatives to deal with the officers of the company on all matters involving grievances and working conditions.

At a meeting today Mr. Rockefeller outlined the plan in a speech to the men, who then discussed it. The sprinkling of members of the United Mine Workers among the delegates made no opposition and the vote on the approval of the Rockefeller proposal was unanimous.

The expenses of the miners' delegates in attending the meeting were paid by the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, which also reimbursed the men for the time they lost in leaving the mines and coming to Pueblo.

Pasteur's Tribute to Lister.

Of all the tributes to the genius of Lord Lister, the discoverer of antiseptic surgery, probably the most touching was that paid to him by Pasteur, the famous French scientist. At a meeting of savants in Paris many years ago Lord Lister was present, and his brilliant achievements were explained to the audience by Pasteur. As he progressed in his speech he became more and more emotional, and at last he was so carried away by his own eloquence that the tears stood in his eyes. Finally he stepped down from the platform, took Lord Lister, who was in the front row of the audience, by both hands, led him back on to the platform and kissed him on both cheeks, after the manner of the French, in full view of the assembly. Few could have looked on unmoved at the great Frenchman's act of homage to the distinguished English surgeon.

In Sympathy.

The two men had met at a dinner party and were talking in a corner by themselves. "You see that tall woman with the sharp nose and the critical eye?" asked one of them. "Yes," said the other quietly. "Well, I've watched her for quite awhile. She's always got her nose into somebody's business. She's the last woman I'd marry." "Which shows how strangely in sympathy we are," said the other without resentment. "She's the last woman I did marry."—Exchange.

The Leaking Stroke.

"Do you think it would improve my style," inquired the varisty man who had got into the crew through favoritism, "if I were to acquire a faster stroke?" "It would improve the crew," replied the candid trainer, "if you got a paralytic stroke."—London Tit-Bits.

ELLA'S MORNING RIDE

When Red Taps Taught the Coachman a Lesson in Manners.

The late H. B. Claffin, who was one of the great merchants of the last generation, lived for many years at Kingsbridge, then one of the suburbs of New York. It was his whim to have each morning before breakfast a drink of cold water fresh from the spring near the house.

One very rainy morning the pitcher was not in its usual place, and he asked the waitress why it was missing.

"Why, Mr. Claffin," she said, "it was rained so hard and is so muddy that I was afraid if I went after the water I should be too soiled to wait on the table. I asked Michael to get it for me, but he said it was his business to look after the horses and carriages, not to run errands."

"Oh!" said Mr. Claffin thoughtfully. "Perhaps he is right, Ella. Please tell him I want the victoria."

Ten minutes later, with much tramping of hoofs and clanging of bits, the carriage drew up at the door, with Michael on the box in his rubber coat and hat cover.

"Come, Ella," said Mr. Claffin, "get your pitcher," and taking her by the arm he walked down the front steps and helped her into the carriage. "Michael," said he, "drive Ella to the spring and back, so she can get me some water without muddying herself."

Ever after Michael used to fill the pitcher on rainy mornings without even waiting to be asked.—Youth's Companion.

POOR PULLMAN PORTERS.

Come to Think of It, Their Jobs Are Not Such Easy Ones.

George or Lemuel or Alexander of the Pullman car—whatever the name may be—has no easy job. If you do not believe that go upstairs some hot summer night to the rear bedroom—that little room under the blazing tin roof which you reserve for your relatives—and make up the bed fifteen or twenty times, carefully unmaking it between times and piling the clothes away in a regular position. Let your family nag at you and criticize you during each moment of the job, while somebody plays an obligato on the electric bell and places shoes and leather grips underneath your feet. Imagine the house is bumping and rocking—and keep a smiling face and a courteous tongue throughout all of it!

Or do this on a bitter night in mid-winter, and between every two or three makings of the bed in the overheated room slip out of a linen coat and into a fairly thin serge one and go and stand outside the door from three to ten minutes in the snow and cold. In some ways this is one of the hardest parts of George's job. Really the negro is peculiarly sensitive to pneumonia and other pulmonary diseases. Yet the rules of a porter's job require that at stopping stations he must be outside of the car—no matter what the hour or condition of the climate—smiling and ready to say:
