Newports Society Men Branded a

Miss Elenora Sears, Reported Fiancee of Harold Vanederbilt, Speaks Contemptuously of Newport Men, of Her Set, Calling Them "Sises," Because They Cultivate the Frivolous Rather Than the Sterner Masculine Powers With Which Men in Other Walks of Life Appeal for Admiration of Women

O less a person than the girl whom Harold Vanderbilt, it is said, is going to marry, is credited with attacking the men of the younger set in Newport soclety.

"They are sissies," is what Miss Elenora Sears is reported to have emphatically remarked of the swells who act as escorts to functions, follow humbly in the train of their dashing sisters as they perform athletic marvels in the surf, on the tennis oriticism. The wealthy youngsters whose only ability is to spend inherited wealth or money gained through the social favor of a woman of influence, were the targets at which the famous Boston tennis player and all around athlete was shooting.

No wonder Miss Sears got a bit out of patience. She is such a good athlete that at nearly every game she is the superior of the Newport man. She is indefatigable in her exercise, and gets up at 5 o'clock every morning. This in their world make half a dozen other popular young New port men who might be mentioned.

Newport scoffs Miss Sears' opinion. It says she expects too much from men who have to consult nothing but their own preferences since childhood. If they are butterfiles, whose favorite diversion, it is to fly in the light of the world famous becuttes, who have given Newport the

ELISHE

n which the tests

of the world famous

e given Newport the

be a very serious man. It to be bored by the type of engrossed in business, or loc only of the serious. Harry resulted directly from a kno to do frivolous things that came from Baltimore into N out funds, or particular a blood. In order to live he ha the profits accruing from champagne. Yet in a short made his way into the r circles, and such leaders and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish c as an indispensable adjunc

How did Lehr do it?

Certainly not by proposin tertainments of Newport the study of Browning, or m the Filipino might be assim er was he an advocate of the

cation.

Lehr earned fame an wealthy woman because he laugh. Such stunts as his f dinner, where a simian v guest of honor at a sybarit place as the unquestioned r of Newport was built upon such trivial things.

After this shining examp wondered at that Lehr's any attempt to become pop of the old fashioned mascul quicker means? Baytoni, the whip, and ter to the 400, in his attemp cial favor, followed lines of Lehr's with such success t married Mrs. Burke-Roche, the bride's father has no first objection, and the new will occupy "Elm Court" i of the present brilliant sea

An Adamless

If a man is to be restor estate at Newport, woman subordinate herself a trifle ed person who reads over week's functions might Newport was an Adamless the names of women are m which the tests are made is woman, or the introduction of some won- Serious Men Not Wanted kept the male butterfly from making an impression with the aid of an auto-

Then when it comes to swimming, again'the Newport man is hopelessly out of the running. The women of Newport swim seriously. They have learned that the sea is a great preserve of feminine pulchritude, and they can go the round night after night, provided they go daily into the surf, and profit by its invigorating

There are many women at Newport who can swim four or five miles without a bit of exhaustion, and it would require a very-careful search to get a man who can perform the same feats,

Serious Men Not Wanted

Social Miss or Mrs. Newport is tireless. She can play bridge whist all morning, pay calls all afternoon, go to dinner, end up at a dance and keep going merrily most before it was introduced the daring for hours, never missing a number, and of the alleged gentler sex'at Newport had vet finishing fresh enough to begin the chabled her to take the wheel from the same old round over again. It is this tireless phenomenon with whom the male Newporter must keep pace. When it is remembered that he lives a life of ease, can be suggested from which the dashing is it any wonder that he falls down when woman shrinks. The auto held no terrors it comes to the strenuous and comes under-villa colony, of course, don't want him to be a very serious man. It does not want to be bored by the type of man who is engrossed in business, or looks and thinks only of the serious. Harry Lehr's success resulted directly from a knowledge of how to do frivolous things that amuses. He came from Baltimore into New York without funds, or particular advantages of blood. In order to live he had to work for the profits accruing from the sale of champagne. Yet in a short time, he had made his way into the most exclusive circles, and such leaders as Mrs. Astor and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish considered him as an indispensable adjunct to their social campaigns.

How did Lehr do it?

WINNERS.

Certainly not by proposing that the entertainments of Newport be directed to the study of Browning, or means by which the Filipino might be assimilated. Neither was he an advocate of the higher education.

Lehr earned fame and married a wealthy woman because he made Newport laugh. Such stunts as his famous monkey dinner, where a simian was made the guest of honor at a sybaritic repast, gave him an unheard of vogue, and his present place as the unquestioned masculine head of Newport was built upon a basis of just such trivial things.

After this shining example, is it to be wondered at that Lehr's rivals dropped any attempt to become popular by means of the old fashioned masculine attributes, and studied out the bizarre as a surer and quicker means?

Baytoni, the whip, and ex-riding mas-ter to the 400, in his attempts to gain social favor, followed lines closely akin to Lehr's with such success that he made a rapid and fortunate advance and finally married Mrs. Burke-Roche, and it is said the bride's father has now forgone his first objection, and the newly wedded pair will occupy "Elm Court" for the balance of the present brilliant season.

An Adamless Eden.

If a man is to be restored to his true estate at Newport, woman will have to subordinate herself a trifle The uninitiated person who reads over a list of the week's functions might conclude that Newport was an Adamless Eden, for only the names of women are mentioned.

One day it is Mrs. Vanderbilt's dinner; then Mrs. Roelker has cards out for a dance; Mrs. Edward Moore Robinson announces a dinner in honor of Mrs. George H. Huhn, or Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont gives a musical at Belcourt; then Mrs. Pem-broke decides to entertain at the clam bake, and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish has a yachting party.

Now men of some sort are necessary to make all this social gayety a success, but there is not a mention of a "Mr." in the line-up. It is known they will be there, but they are like the supernumeries in a Newport, and that is the wemen of the play or chorus men in a musical show.

which the tests are made is wded, but the promenade walks, with back turned on the superb speciis, of horse flesh, and every glance lines the boxes.

ELISHA DYER JR.

erhaps in his college days the newer to Bellevue avenue has gained e fame as an athlete. He sees a nce for amusement and perhaps fame tennis tournament. The entries of star players are secured, and contests woman, or the introduction of some wonderful tollette from Worth, throws athletic masculine proficiency into the shade. The automobile looked like a chance to ised on the ravishing display of strengthen man, and perhaps give him inine beauty magnificently gowned some little measure of dominion, but al-

It is part of the Newport training for milady to do the unexpected. Nothing arrival of some especially beautiful descriptions of the arrival of some especially beautiful descriptions of the arrival of some especially beautiful descriptions are suggested from which which we describe the strength of the strength which which the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when which descripts the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when which descripts the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the dashing is it any wonder that he rails down when the property and the criticism of plain spoken girls like to anything that the most reckarrival of some especially beautiful less chauffeur would attempt. This

The Struggle for Existence in "Land of Fire"

s; for could they not see for them-es that there was only one kind of in the world whose leaves were ever ager strains the eye and the imagination known Scottish firm of Coats. Under the nshoat was very angry, because he an unknown sea. w that he had spoken only trufh. e more he traveled to that country he north, and this time when he came k it was in the form of the first par-

When he heard them laughing to see beyond, both vanish together into

A Region of Wonders

000) pravided by two brothers of the wellknown Scottish firm of Coats. Under the command of Mr. Bruce,

German-Government expedition under the command of Dr. Eric von Drygalski in the Gauss.

Swedish-Expedition under Dr. Norden-

America. They have been working at a point almost diametrically opposite to the British station in Victoria land, The early return of the expedition is understood to be connected with the lack of sufficient funds from which it has suffered. It was owing to this cause that a rt was made in November, 1902.

Miss Elenora Sears, Reported Fiancee of Harold Vanderbilt, Speaks Contemptuously of Newport Men, of Her Set, Calling Them "Sis= sies," Because They Cultivate the Frivolous Rather Than the Sterner Masculine Powers With Which Men in Other Walks of Life Appeal Paurick for Admiration of Women whom Harold Vanderbilt, it is said, is going to marry, is credited with attacking the men of the younger set in Newport soclety.

'They are sissies," is what Miss Elenora Sears is reported to have emphatically remarked of the swells who act as escorts to functions, follow humbly in the train of their dashing sisters as they perform athletic marvels in the surf, on the tenniscourts or golf links, at the wheel of the automobile or holding the reins over a

Miss Sears certainly did not mean the elderly men of affairs, the solid business These are constantly dealing with big matters, and have little leisure for trifling. They don't figure in Newport life, as they are only able to eke a little time for the entertainments of the place they make critcism. The wealthy youngsters whose only ability is to spend inherited wealth or money gained through the social favor of a woman of influence, were the targets at which the famous Boston tennis player and all around athlete was shooting.

No wonder Miss Sears got a bit out of patience. She is such a good athlete that at nearly every game she is the superior of the Newport man. She is indefatigable in her exercise, and gets up at 5 o'clock every morning. This in itself would make her unique in a resort where nobody, and particularly the men, wants a breakfast served much before noon. Miss. Sears thinks nothing of a five mile swim, will play tennis four hours at a stretch, has stately palaces that line the ocean front of the country's pleasure metropolis.

These are constantly dealers are constantly dealers. an old sailor, drives four-in-hand, plays polo and learns any new game in half a dozen trials.

Harry Lehr can not do any of these things half as well, neither can Alfred or Reggie Vanderbilt, or young Goelet, or These are exempt from the force of the Baytoni, or Joe Widener; or any one of half a dozen other popular young New-port men who might be mentioned.

Newport scoffs Miss Sears' opinion. It says she expects too much from men who have to consult nothing but their own preferences since childhood. If they are butterflies, whose favorite diversion, it is to fly in the light of the world famous beauties, who have given Newport the reputation of being the leading fashionable

Mere Man's Handicap

Mere man labors against an awful handicap at Newport, for woman is queen. She is the center and focus of all things, he is merely an added feature of her Man gets up a horse show. He invests his money deeply in the kind of animals who will give him prizes, and takes the blue ribbons from hated rivals.

What is the outcome? The green feminine beauty magnificently gown that lines the boxes.

Perhaps in his college days the new comer to Bellevue avenue has gain some fame as an athlete. He sees chance for amusement and perhaps for in a tennis tournament. The entries the star players are secured, and contes take place. Then nine chances in ten son woman is a better player than any of the imported stars, or in case that fails the the arrival of some especially beautif

Chatterbox Race of Queer People Who Strug

earliest ancestors, in the primal simplici- | The man hands his chosen bride his ments for a bare existence, the Yag-hans of Tierre del Fuego have been use such pigments to aid their stalking, forced to abandon all but the slightest a solence in which they are past masters, mental equipment. They have evolved To hunt the guanaco they first color was she may receive in her calf or thigh, no faith, no god; they have no to tiemselves according to the ground over the into one tribe; no which they must move e.g., white when long birch arrows with its beautifully headman to organize them in common on snowfields, yellow among dry pamps defense or attack. They are still station grass, slate color with red spots when ing bow. Its return by her own hand sighifles acceptance without more to do, and tree in the world whose leaves were ev green? When he heard them laughtr Camshoat was very angry, because 1 knew that he had spoken only trut Once more he traveled to that count in the north, and this time when he can