the civil war who now live we owe a debt of everlasting gratitude. We can not repay them for the great service they rendered to us who now enjoy the blessings of the republic. But we can do something to repay them for their sacrifice. It is our duty as a nation to care for the Union soldier, for his widow and for his orphan. It is but a question of a few years until the last survivor of this great conflict will have answered the final call, and silently folded his tent on God's eternal camping ground. As the years come and go, it is the duty of the national government
