TWO HAPPY FRENCHMEN

JULES GOUX.

EMILE BEGIN.

It was a pair of happy Frenchmen that climbed out of the winning Peugeot, No. 16, at the end of the five-hundred-mile race on the motor speedway yesterday to indulge in a fraternal hand shake. Jules Goux, pilot, and Emile Begin, his mechanic, were so overcome with emotion that words failed them. So all they did was to stand with hands clasped, while the greatest excitement prevailed all around them. Men were embracing each other in the pits and imprinting fervent kisses on each other's cheeks. Wine bottles were opened and an impromptu celebration was begun right on the spot. Finally a French and an American flag were produced, and around these the entire assemblage gathered, while Goux waved the flags high in the air. It was altogether the most enthusiastically happy victory ever seen on the speedway.

Old Deacon Philippe Brilliant Diamond

Deacon Philippe, once a man of the Pirates, is in Indianapolis at the head of the Pittsburgh Federal League, his team series of four games with the Feds at Riverside park this Philippe has had an interest on the diamond. He was born in Retreat, Va., on May 23, 1877, christened Charles, but his demeanor won the title of Deacon after he began his professional career. That was in 1897, when he signed to pitch for Minneapolis in the Western League. Philippe with the Millers two seasons, received a call from Louisville. The Colonels were then in good standing in the National League, the Louisville team was to Pittsburgh, and the Deacon long and glorious career of a as a Pirate slub artist.
