JOE JAGGERSBERGER IS CAUGHT BY GIRL'S DAD

CAR FOR INDIANAPOLIS RACES NOT FAST ENOUGH.

RACINE ELOPEMENT HALTED

[Special to The Indianapolis News]

WAUKEGAN, Ill., May 13.—Not even his racing car, built for Indianapolis speedway events, could save Joe Jaggersberger, one-legged racing driver, from the clutches of an irate father with whose daughter he had eloped today. Although Jaggersberger outdistanced him in a mid-night chase between two high powered racing automobiles that led from Racine, Wis., along the shore of Lake Michigan to Waukegan, John Olle, Racine foundryman, outwitted the auto racer and prevented his elopement with Olle's seven-teen-year-old daughter.

Says She'll Marry Him Anyhow.

Jaggersberger spent several hours in the Waukegan jail before he was released today. The girl, protesting that she loved the race driver and intended to marry him, was driven back to Racine.

Olle, Sr., had gone upstairs late last night, leaving his daughter and Jaggersberger in the parlor. He was preparing to retire when he saw the couple slip out a side door, climb into a big racing car, recently built for the Indianapolis races, and speed away. Olle requisitioned a racing car from a garage in the next block and started in pursuit. Several miles south of Racine he overtook the Olle requisitioned a racing car from a garage in the next block and started in pursuit. Several miles south of Racine he overtook the racer, but Jagersberger threw on the high speed and spurted ahead.

Police Arrest Elopers.

Fifteen miles north of Waukegan Olle drove up to a farmhouse and telephoned ahead to the Waukegan police. They arrested the elopers at 1:30 a. m., when they drove to the police station and asked to be directed to a minister.

Jagersberger lost a leg two years ago in an automobile accident during the Vanderbilt races at Savannah.
