went to a lot of expense there, the $43,000 loss figure is nearer being correct than any other. Jack Curley, chief promoter of the fight, after being asked a half dozen times for the real receipt figures, said two days after the fight:

"I can't give the exact figures now, but we are saying that the receipts were $110,000."

in Juarez he was to get only 25 per-cent of the net profits. That would Curley, as will be noticed, didn't make the direct statement that the have made his share nothing at all receipts were $110,000. He merely had the same arrangement held over said "We are saying." His "we are for Havana. Jack Robinson, who acted as press agent for the fight, said: "I learn $110,000, as ('urley said "We are the Garden, and as we went into that the receipts were $56,500." saying." the promoters would have the building the night of the fight

There also has been a big dispute lost on the affair, as in that case as to what the attendance was. The Willard's share would have been promoters of the fight backed away around $28,000, the Havana exfrom giving the exact figures, or even penses $70,000, and the Juarez exapproximate figures. That left it up penses $15,000, making a total exto the newspaper men at the ring-lpense of $113,000.
