BOBBY JONES IS PRODIGY OF GOLF LINKS

RANKS WITH BEST AMERICAN GOLF PLAYERS.

"Little Bobby" Jones, the most famous boy in the United States owing to his almost reaching the semifinal round for the national golf championship, devotes himself with as much earnestness and success to his studies in the Tech high school here as he does to winning golf matches, says an Atlanta dispatch to Philadelphia Public Ledger. Last year, in the first grade in the Tech high school, he took second year Latin in addition to his regular first year studies, and did it of his own volition. The Tech instructors who have taught "Little Bob" say there is no better student in the school.

"Little Bob's" name is Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., and he is named for his grandfather, Robert Tyre Jones, Sr., a prominent citizen of Canton, Ga. His father, Robert P. Jones, is an Atlanta lawyer.

"Little Bob" was born on March 17, 1902, in the old L. P. Grant homestead, near Grant park. At that time his parents were living at the Grant homestead with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan M. Grant. For the last nine years the Joneses have lived at East Lake, and when he was six years old "Little Bob" began to knock a golf ball up and down the streets of that flourishing municipality, which has grown up around the East Lake club.

His debut on the East Lake golf course with a set of clubs, a bag and some "regular" balls. Steward Maiden, instructor at East Lake, saw his promise right from the start and began to train him. "Little Bob" gives Maiden the full credit for his skill at the game.

It was in the southern championship tournament played over the East Lake course in 1915 that "Little Bob" first came into prominence. Although he did not win in that tournament he showed his class in every round.

Later in the summer of 1915 he won the invitation tournament of the Hobuck club of Birmingham. Still later he won the invitation tournament of the Druid Hills club and the invitation tournament of the East Lake club. He established the course record for East Lake with a 77. Since that time he has lowered the East Lake record to 74.

In 1916 "Little Bob" came fully into his own. He won the invitation tournament of the Birmingham Golf and Country club, won the invitation tournament of the Cherokee Golf and Country club of Knoxville, and won the Georgia championship at Brooks Haven a few weeks ago. In the last-named tournament he defeated Perry Adair, Atlanta's other juvenile golf wonder, in one of the most magnificent battles ever seen by Atlanta's golfers.

ITALIAN DRIVER HAD ENOUGH

Dario Resta Threatens to Quit Speedway and Give Other Drivers Chance to Show Skill.

Dario Resta.

Dario Resta, the daring Italian driver, has threatened to quit racing on the Chicago motor speedway and give other drivers a chance. Resta literally has coined money on the Chicago course. Since it was dedicated, in June, 1915, the wonder pilot has won more than $60,000. This sum represents almost half of the total purses offered by the speedway management. The Italian's winnings at Chicago last year totaled $27,250. He was paid $25,000 for taking the 500-mile derby and later received $1,250 for participating against Oldfield, and Burman in a challenge race. This season he landed $12,000 by winning the 300-mile event in June, $3,000 for beating DePalma in their match races a week later.

ENGLISH SHELL AT HARVARD

Authorities Plan to Match American Products Against Foreign Boat in Spring Trials.

The Harvard varsity crew will have an English racing shell at its disposal for the race with Yale next June, a boat turned out by an English builder having arrived on the steamship Cambrian.

James T. Sheppard.

The sportsmen of Columbia, Pa., and vicinity have organized the Columbia Sportsmen's club, with James T. Sheppard, of baseball fame, as president. Joseph J. Lutz was elected treasurer.

Looking for a Scapegoat. Jones—"And have they fixed the blame on any special person for that last railroad smash?" Brown—"Why, the railroad officials are trying to fix the blame on James Watt for first discovering the motive power of steam."—Life.

Study Humanity. One of the nearest and simplest of duties is the perception of others' points of view, of sympathy, in no limited sense; and that sympathy we can only gain through looking at humanity in its wholeness.—A. C. Benson.

FIRST AID ON THE BATTLEFIELD.
 Usually the slightly wounded are not attended at all while an engagement is taking place. If the opportunity presents, however, a surgeon will dress the wounds of a slightly injured man, as shown in the photograph. The soldier has been injured in a mild skirmish between trench-raiding parties and is having his hurts cared for right on the scene.

City is Self Conscious.
 The city life is conscious of itself, the small town life is not, asserts Seymour Deeming in the "Atlantic." An army of fairly competent minds is busy interpreting the life of the city to itself, and this so thoroughly that not a teacher or ribbon counter clerk of the urban lot but has his spokesman in the public prints and partakes somewhere of the typical. And the sales person who has once seen sales people elevated to the rank of priest or acted comedy or tragedy is conscious of a new sense of personal consequence which fears of obscurity are powerless wholly to erase. To have had one's social setting touched by the wand of art is to have shaken hands with a celebrity; it is never afterward quite the same.

Argentina's Capital.
 Buenos Aires is to Argentina what Paris is to France—the center of the national industries, thought and culture. Commerce, journalism, politics, the drama, music, literature, art and social life are intensely focused there. The brilliant activity of the greatest city of the southern hemisphere (the fourth city of the Americas after New York, Chicago and Philadelphia) draws the Argentines to it as a flame attracts moths, and one-fifth of the population of the country struggles there in feverish competition for pleasure and gain.
 No traveler to the southern countries but stops as long as he may in Buenos Aires to enjoy or to study the most cosmopolitan, yet most Latinized, of the Spanish American cities. The metropolis is at once the heart and the brain of the country.—National Geographic Magazine.
