

INDIANAPOLIS MAN TELLS OF VANDERBILT COURSE

TAKES THRILLING RIDE WITH
"DAREDEVIL JOE" TRACY.

TERRIFIC SPEED IS MADE

Dr. J. Ray Newcomb, of Indianapolis, now in New York city, in charge of the St. Bartholomew Eye Hospital, had an experience with "Daredevil" Joe Tracy, winner of the Vanderbilt elimination cup race, and starter in the race proper, next Saturday. The doctor, in company with a friend, went to Long Island the day before the Vanderbilt elimination trials to see Tracy in his practice. Tracy offered to take them in his machine, for a trip over the course, and Dr. Newcomb accepted.

Tracy's machine, the ninety-horsepower Locomobile (Tracy asserts that it is nearer 120-horsepower) covered the 29.71 miles in 33 minutes flat. The course is an ordinary country road, and in it there are eight right-angle turns. On the straight stretch of road, Tracy sent the machine along at a rate of ninety miles an hour, or 152 feet every second. To reckon the speed in terms that would give Indianapolis people a more definite idea it is estimated that the above rate would carry the machine from Washington street to Fourteenth street in exactly one minute.

Speed Is Terrific.

The terrific speed, the angry roar of the engines, the dust and the wind combined to make it by far the most exciting trip ever attempted over a country road. A noticeable thing when such high speed is attained is the fact that one unaccustomed to the rate, feels as though he were falling, and the impression clings until the car has been brought to a full stop. A car traveling at a rate of ninety miles an hour does not jar over bumps.

Home-Made Sport Commencement

Just as soon as the number of football teams this fall, it will be necessary to add another game to the Indiana gridiron.

It is to be hoped, devoutly, that the story of the first world's championship in which Indiana won three times, after the Pirates had captured the title, will repeat itself in the Indiana gridiron.

The terrific speed, the angry roar of the engines, the dust and the wind combined to make it by far the most exciting trip ever attempted over a country road. A noticeable thing when such high speed is attained is the fact that one unaccustomed to the rate, feels as though he were falling, and the impression clings until the car has been brought to a full stop. A car traveling at a rate of ninety miles an hour does not jar over bumps. Large ruts, or rocks, or other bad places in the road which could be seen a hundred feet away, did not affect the smooth going of the car. Tracy estimated that a car making an average speed equal to that made on the trip, would jump a twenty-foot ditch and not disturb the equilibrium of the car or the people in it.

Tracy is one of the most remarkable drivers in this or any other country. The test drive, in which Dr. Newcomb was a passenger, was made in only three minutes slower than the drive that won the race for Tracy in the elimination race.

Remarkable Stop Is Made.

One incident during the course of the round, showed Tracy to possess a good nerve. The car was going at the rate of more than ninety miles an hour, when an accident to the engines made an immediate stop necessary. Tracy brought the car to a full stop in the space of only forty-one feet, although two tires were torn off in the process.

Dr. Newcomb found the most exciting experience of the whole trip in negotiating the right-angle turns. These turns were all taken at a speed of sixty miles an hour. If one can imagine an automobile turning from Washington into Illinois street at that rate, a definite idea can be formed of what sort of an experience it is. Times without number Tracy's car whirled around the turns on two wheels, and missed telephone poles by mere inches. The exhilaration found in such high speed is sure to make a speed maniac of the most timid person, but automobile driving is the most dangerous sport in the world, if speed is the only pleasure sought.

The farmers along the Vanderbilt course are said to be a set of grafters. The advent of so many rich people in the neighborhood has started the country folk to charging outrageous prices for even the most trifling commodities. A cup of coffee, a sandwich and a piece of pie may be enjoyed only after the victim has handed over a dollar. Rooms rent for as high as $40 a night, and standing room for an auto costs $10.

ANOTHER PURDUE STAR

Half-Back Michigan Has Been to Ineligible List.

Stripped to the Minimum
LAWRENCE, Ind.—Gordon E. Hause has been added to the long list of players expected to represent Purdue who have been ineligible because of the breaking of the football rules. He, who has been putting up such good games at half-back, has been stripped to the minimum because he made up the required amount before the Indiana game, but was unable to represent the side back again. With Oberlin and Michigan gone, and Miller out of action, the only similar back field spot he filled yesterday. Hause, one of four players who is not eligible, and from this which he jumped through the wire he broke gear for a bare field in Kinston, N.C., and has since been home. He has joined the Indiana team, and hoped he will be in shape for the game.

Last night the lists were also stripped of Richman and had signed a letter indicating his discontent with the Indiana coach, Frank Murphy, and especially Fager. At present he is the lone wild card in Indiana.

Instead of the usual excitement the year before a game has been set with the Indiana team for this Saturday. Full halves will be played and a referee will be given a charge for the first year.
