At the left of the picture is Duray of France. Hemer, also a Frenchman, is at the right, and Nazzaro, one of the five Italian entries, is at the bottom. These men have become known as the "foreign devils" on account of their recklessness in speeding. It is predicted that these men will be the ones the winners of the American elimination races will have to beat.

The Commercial Bowling League met for its fourth roll last night and the bowlers showed improved form. Five double centuries were posted and the series were so closely contested that only two teams captured straights. The Fletchers annexed three from the Liebers chiefly through the fine bowling of Talbert, who captured the high individual honors of the evening, posting a fine score of 234 in his first game.

The Water Company team also won straights from their opponents, the Indiana Nationals. Brinkmeyer was largely responsible for his team winning three games, for he posted the third high score of the evening in his second game, rolling 212.
